Seminar on youth work and youth policy practices in support of young people's transition to autonomy and work life

Budapest, 5-7 July 2016

Programme of the seminar

Aim:

The seminar aims to pool good practices of youth work and policy in responding to the challenges faced by young people in their transition to autonomy through, with a particular focus on measures in the areas of employment, education and training.

Objectives:

- to share and learn from youth work and policy interventions at local and national level on topics of the seminar;
- to identify what makes an intervention a good practice and how to make these practices transferrable or adaptable in other contexts;
- to familiarise participants with the work of the Council of Europe on access to social rights with a particular focus on the youth sector;
- to identify needs at national and regional level that the Council of Europe should take into account when planning future work on transition to autonomy and access to labour market
- to propose ways in which the online platform can be used and promoted
- to introduce Enter recommendation and identify ways to use it in the follow-up of the seminar

Online learning

Before the seminar, the participants will be engaged in online learning activities based on the Tranzit and Youth Works online platform of the Youth Department of the Council of Europe, primarily focused on sharing good practices.
